Proper Training.

And make sure that your little children, and the dear young things all about you, have the proper beginnings to insure for them healthy and beautiful and graceful bodily growth.

Since an ugly arm or hand can so easily spoil the perfection of beauty, suppose, today, I show you how beautiful arms and hands may be evolved through proper training. It seems a far cry from dancing to beautiful arms and hands; but I shall try to show you how they may be gained in the rhythmical movement and exercise of the classical dance.

As most of the movements of the

As most of the movements of the classical dance are executed with high-flexed arch and, the body's weight falling on the ball of the toot, while the instep is held in a firm high curve, they give of themselves a slender grace and power to the much too neglected foot. In both of the exercises I give you today, the body must be poised lightly and springily upon the ball of the foot, inclining forward toward the toes. Walking and dancing thus will banish the flat foot that seems to be a foe of modern high-heeled civilization. The first picture shows one stage of a very wonderful arm exercise. Polse the weight on the balls of the feet, swaying slightly back and forward from toes to heels as the arms are raised with drooping wrists to shoulder height. When thearms are straight lines from shoulder sockets, raise the wrists and arms simultaneously until the backs of the hands just touch above the head.

To the right is shown a classical dancing step in which the hands and arms are also exercised.

In all these arm exercises hold the hand relaxed from the wrist, with light, pliant fingers, middle fingers fairly close together, small and index fingers gently curved and relaxed with the index finger pointing up ever so slightly. The faithful practice of these two exercises will register for you a distinct step toward the acquisition of poetically graceful arms and hands.

So said Dr. Mary R. Lapham, of Highlands. N. C., one of the most noted women physicians of the south, addressing the Fourth International congress on school hygiene here today. Dr. Lapham laid much of the blame for fatal results from tuberculosis upon the shoulders of those who delay diagnosis, and thereby prevent attention nosis, and thereby prevent attention being given the disease in its inciplent stage when the patient may be cured and saved.

Dr. Ira S. Wiles, member of the New York City board of education said that the constructive value of instruction in hygiene is rapidly permeating our school system.

Early education of the child in right habits of all matters of diet is and will be the basis of the nation's advancement in the opinion of Dr. D. R. MacMillan, director, department of child study and educational research of the chicago public schools.

"There are many children who are hygienically handicapped from the beginning of life," he said. "First, the chain of heritage is weakened in some links, and of course, this goes back to unhygienic conditions and infinences. Children come into the world within with incipient nervous disorders, which environmental factors early transform into overstimulated or understimulated nervous systems. Then derstimulated nervous systems. Then, again, diseases in early years, are found to be associated in the child's life with unbygienic states. Right living through proper surroundings and teachings will ultimately make the so-called inevitable children's diseases a mere matter of curious history in child hygiens."

"In three years the Rockefeller foundation and the health authorities in the south have made 1,800,000 microscopic examinations for hook worm. Among this number 222,000 had the hook worm."

At a general public meeting addresses were made by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, and Sir James Grant, president of the National Canadian Organizing commission. Dr. Eliot, president of the corgress said: "It is a plain duty of the state to provide segregation of the defective, insane and the habitual criminal in order to prevent the breeding of human beings from such stock."

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin Is Easily Shed

To free your summar-soiled skin of its olliness, muddiness, freckies, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary mercollsed wax, which can be had at any drug store. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Immediately the officacing surface skin begins to come off in fine powder-like particles. Gradually the entire cuticle is absorbed, without pain or inconvenience.
